DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

This office action is in response to the amendment filed 7/14/2010.

Terminal Disclaimer

1. The terminal disclaimer filed on 7/14/2010 disclaiming the terminal portion of any patent granted on this application which would extend beyond the expiration date of the related patent 7690083 has been reviewed and is accepted. The terminal disclaimer has been recorded.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The USC 112 rejections of the previous office action are withdrawn in view of the amendment submitted 7/14/2010.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 28-29, 31 and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Vickers (US 6145352).

3. Regarding claims 28, 31 and 34, Vickers teaches a latch having a head part (42) arranged outside a thin wall, a body part (20 below 42 – see figure 4) which proceeds from the head part and projects through the opening in the mounted position, holding elements (110 and 150) which project from the body part and are displaceable in a direction of the elements' outer surfaces, a free end of the holding elements being provided with a first inclined surface (see figure below) for supporting the body part without play on the rim wherein the first inclined surface rests on the rim of the opening in the mounted position (see figure 24) wherein said free end of said holding elements being further provided with a second inclined surface (see below) for slam action, the second inclined surface being “approximately” at a right angle to the first; wherein the holding elements are slides that diametrically oppose each other; the body part and the holding elements being separate parts and are arranged to be displaceable in a cylinder (as explained in the previous office action) of the body part parallel to the plane of the thin wall.

4. Regarding claim 29, Vickers shows the slides are held against a pressure spring force (198) by a hook arrangement (tabs and slots seen in figures 9 and 10).

Art Unit: 3673

5. Regarding claim 31, Vickers teaches the claimed limitations as applied to claim 28 above and further teaches that a slides are held by a spring force (198) and a pin arrangement (tabs and slots of figures 9 and 10). See the Vickers device below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Art Unit: 3673

8. Claims 32 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vickers as applied to claim 31 above and further in view of Anderson (US 5251467).

9. Regarding claims 32 and 33, Vickers shows applicant's inventive concept of a latch with sliding holding elements but fails to show screws screwed into the head arrangement to regulate movement of the holding elements but Anderson shows this to be well known in the art. Anderson shows a screw (37) entering through a head arrangement which regulates the extent of movement of the holding elements 25 by holding spaces 35 against cam 41. Using screws to secure the sliding members of Vickers as taught by Anderson would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art since replacing one known securing means (tab and slot of Vickers) with another known securing means (screw of Anderson) is considered to be within the level of ordinary skill in the art and would yield predictable results since the screw of Anderson has proven useful as a securing means in the prior art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 7/14/10 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that first inclined plane does not rest on the rim of the opening when mounted but the examiner respectfully disagrees and points to figure 24 for support where the first inclined plane contacts the rim of the opening. Applicant is invited to call the examiner to further discuss and clarify applicant's inventive concept.

Conclusion

2. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
